Business Analysis, Marketing & Product Management

Consultant

Jane McInerney is an independent consultant with extensive experience providing clients marketing strategy and implementation; outreach, communications, product and program management; business analysis and operations support services. Throughout her career she has managed projects of all sizes in the financial services, government, social services, information technology, and telecommunications industries delivering products and services to their various market segments.

Most recently Ms. McInerney completed an assignment as a sub-contractor to the General Services Administration (GSA) HSPD-12 Managed Services Office (MSO), the largest issuer of government identity credentials to civilian agencies. In her role there, she performed the communications and outreach lead function. While at GSA she served as a project manager and business analyst working on other identity management and strategy tasks. Other representative clients include Excella Consulting, The EMMES Corporation, AOC Solutions, and SMBLive. Ms. McInerney utilizes her extensive experience along with common sense thinking, resourcefulness and a positive get it done attitude to create projects value and customer loyalty for her clients.

Prior to consulting she served in executive management roles at OnLine Investments, Inc. a financial services start-up and senior management marketing positions in TRW's Systems Information and Technology division. Before joining TRW, Ms. McInerney spent her formative years in various marketing positions with MCI Telecommunications.

As an active volunteer for Dress for Success Washington, DC, in 2004 she launched their Professional Women's Group, a networking forum with the purpose of delivering mentoring and support services to low income women recently re-employed. In 2006, she joined the Board of Directors and served as the Treasurer for three years. Recently Ms. McInerney collaborated on a grant proposal resulting in a $150,000 award from the District of Columbia government to deliver work readiness skills and re-employment training services. Ms McInerney is an active member of Women in Technology (WIT).

Ms. McInerney holds a BS in Business Administration from the University of Dayton, and an MBA from the Kellstadt Graduate School of Business, DePaul University.
